

WESTERLY

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown who, under the law, must be the complaining officer in all criminal cases brought in the Third district court, is prepared to prosecute the Stenington men who assaulted Empire Rose during the baseball game at White Rock, last Sunday afternoon. The men accused of the assault, which resulted in a free-for-all fight, are not players on the Stenington team. In fact none of the players on the White Rock or Stenington teams had any part in the disgraceful row. In order to prosecute the offenders, Chief Brown must have Empire Rose as the principal witness for the state, and he is therefore endeavoring to have Rose come to Westerly and appear in the Third district court against his assailants. It is understood that Rose is not inclined to appear as the real complaining witness, and Chief Brown is planning to secure him, though he may be an unwilling witness. The chief says the testimony of Rose is absolutely necessary in the prosecution. Friends of Rose advise him to appear in court voluntarily should the Stenington men be arrested and brought into court.

It is not believed that the Stenington men will resist prosecution, by insisting on their extrajudicial rights, and thus not be free to go and come at will in Westerly and the rest of Rhode Island, and with warrant for their arrest pending. They undoubtedly would prefer to stand trial and pay the penalty, for the occasion where their temper replaced their ordinary good judgment.

Those who witnessed the general row declare it was not all one-sided, and was therefore participated in by residents of Westerly as well as of Stenington. Suggestion is made by a Stenington man that Chief Brown arrest all known offenders of the law, regardless of their standing or place of residence, and not confine his efforts alone to the assailants of the umpire, even if they were the starters of the general row.

The democratic state central committee at a meeting held on Wednesday decided to call the state convention in Elks hall, Providence, on Tuesday, Aug. 3. This convention will make nominations for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, general treasurer and attorney general, and five presidential electors. The candidates for congressmen from the First, Second and Third districts will be nominated in separate congressional conventions immediately after adjournment of the state convention.

The caucuses for election of delegates to the state and congressional conventions shall be held not later than Saturday, Oct. 2. Each representative district in the state shall elect two delegates, and two alternates to each convention. It is the custom in Westerly to select one set of delegates for both conventions. The delegates to the state convention will elect a member of the state central committee for each representative district.

The committee on nominations is as follows: Thomas H. Donohue, Mrs. Robert E. Newton, of Providence; Adair L. Soucy, of Woonsocket; Lemuel N. Cranston, of South Kingstown; Robert J. Quinn, of West Warwick. The publicity committee: Daniel H. Hagan, of East Providence; Mrs. Della A. Johnson, of Providence; John P. Burns of Pawtucket.

Scallops will be scarce this season, if the first day's haul allowed under the law is an indicator. East Greenwich and Cowesett bays are the centres of the industry in Rhode Island, and the fishermen made an early start for the scallop grounds, Wednesday morning. The first boat to return brought in only two bushels after two hours of dredging. With a plentiful crop the yield in that time would be about twenty-five bushels.

Professor Benjamin T. Leland, teacher of industrial education at the West Virginia university, was elected state supervisor of industrial education at a salary of $3000, by the Rhode Island state board of education at a meeting on Wednesday afternoon. Professor Leland is a graduate of Harvard, with a degree of A. M. from Brown. Several years ago he was a teacher in the Providence Technical High school. He succeeds Irving C. Perkins who resigned Aug. 1.

The board also elected Professor George E. Adams director of teacher training in agriculture. He is now professor of agriculture at the Rhode Island State college Kingston.

There are not many democrats in Westerly and general apathy seems to have absolute control of the faithful few. With the call issued for the state and congressional conventions, the town committee is planning a way to raise a fund sufficient to advertise a call to caucus, and go through the formality of selecting delegates. The indications are that there will be hardly democrats enough at the caucuses to fill the delegation to the conventions. As there are no political plums in view there is no incentive for the local democrats to get busy.

The political situation is so one-sided in Westerly that there are no election expenses, except the small sum necessary for advertising the caucus, either on the republican or democratic side. The assessment of candidates to meet the election expenses is not known in Westerly, and no appeal is ever made for funds from the state or national committees. Politicians here padlock their own political canoes.

Local Leagues. James E. Kennedy, janitor of the Library and Municipal building is on vacation. So is Librarian Wood.

The bazaar of the Westerly Sanitary corps ended with last week, but the over-street advertising banners still remain.

The republican committee has practically decided not to have a Harding-Coolidge banner in Dixon square. It was stated the banner custom has been buried with the torches and oil cloth canopies, of old campaign times.

All who intend to operate jitneys in Westerly have filed application for license, but all licenses have not been issued.

Third district court session at Westerly this (Friday) morning.

JEWETT CITY

The funeral services for Eugene Le Claire were held from St. Mary's church, Thursday morning. Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McCabe, pastor of the church, with Rev. R. P. Morrissey, pastor of St. John's church in Plainfield as deacon and Rev. J. H. Seiferman as sub-deacon. Between five and six hundred relatives and friends were gathered in the spacious church to pay their last respects to the departed. At the close of the service Miss Della Morey sang Face to Face as a waiting hymn. The touch of sympathy, added to Miss Morey's skill as a soloist, will not soon be forgotten by the large audience who listened in silence.

Eugene Le Claire's death caused the first break in the ranks of the Orville La Flamme post, American Legion, and to do him honor sixty members of the post attended the services in full uniform in a body.

John Potts, Jr., who was color bearer in the army acted also in that capacity for the post, the color guard being Arthur Rioux and Hector Le Fevre. Lieut. G. H. Jennings, post commander, marched in the lead of the men, with Edward Watt in command of the soldiers and Earl S. Hiseox in command of the navy men. The armed guard of honor, who also composed the firing squad, were in command of Ephraim Jarvis. They were: Guysses Guillet, William Monty, Henry Cadieux, George Cyr, Irving Thornton, William Fannington, George Wilcox and Ralph Kingsley. The bearers were John Barry, Harold Brickley, Edward Blanchard, Edmond Jodoin, Clovis Casavant and Dona Ballou.

The casket was covered with the American flag, while outside at the main entrance to the park the town flag was at half mast. At the grave the committal service was conducted by Father McCabe, after which taps were sounded by William Menard, and the rifle squad of eight men discharged three salutes over the casket as it was lowered into the grave.

Among those who attended were G. A. Haskell and Hugh McLaughlin, representing Sedition post, No. 1, G. A. R. also members of the town and borough board of government.

During the march to the cemetery the flag was passed. On the return it was hung to the breeze. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery in Sylvaudale, Lisbon. Hourigan Brothers were in charge of the session.

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers from the wife, mother, brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Guillet, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cramb and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Haskell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Larcher, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Larcher, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson, Miss Erna Cooper, Orville La Flamme Post American Legion, Miss Margaret Mort, John Blake, Jr., Miss Katie Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Martha Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sauter, Mr. and Mrs. Leland E. Green, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston, Andrew McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Whitford, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Carey, Jodoin's Market, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Jodoin, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Flynn, George S. Beadley, Mr. and Mrs. Dora Ballou, Mr. and Mrs. A. Zeger, Bishop & Bidwell Co., Edward Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Haskell and Mrs. J. E. Phillips. The relatives and friends from out of town who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gauthier, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mathieu, Adolphus Cloutier of Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Larcher, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Larcher, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Haskell and daughter, Dora, and Miss Emma Cooper of Springfield, Mrs. Martin Wolfe of Danielson.

Frank I. Ray, while chopping on his wood lot in the south part of the town Thursday afternoon laid open the top of his foot by the axe. Although bleeding profusely from several severed veins, Mr. Ray was able to get into his town and drove as far toward the borough as Frank LaPointe's, where he met Mr. Polsam, of New York, in his automobile, being weak from loss of blood, and unable to drive further. Mr. Polsam brought him to Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's office. Several stitches were required to close the ugly gash. James Cray rendered assistance in getting Mr. Ray fixed up to be taken home. He then went to Mrs. LaPointe's and drove Mr. Ray's horse to his home in Jewett City.

Mrs. Frank Wilcox entertained the Ladies' society of the Congregational church at Mrs. Walter Marshall's cottage at Groton Long Point on Wednesday afternoon. Sixty persons were present, going down in automobiles, their owners donating the use of the cars for the occasion. A business meeting was held, at which Mrs. F. D. Ballou presided. A committee was appointed to conduct a food sale soon. The committee consists of Mrs. Abraham Zeiger, Mrs. S. R. Walters, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. Frank Stetson and Mrs. H. N. Wheelock.

Madame Jarley's Wax-works will be exhibited in October under the direction of Mrs. E. H. Hiseox. Three cheers were given for Mrs. Wilcox, Mrs. Marshall and for those who loaned their cars, who were Mrs. Walter A. Richardson, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. Abraham Zeiger, Mrs. H. C. Webster, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. Frank Wilcox, Mrs. F. D. Ballou, Mrs. F. S. Leonard and Rev. Clinton Andrews, and for Miss S. Nettie Johnson for the use of her telephone. The party were photographed by several members. Bathing was a popular pastime. The ladies who assisted Mrs. Wilcox in serv-

Hart's August Fur Sale

CONTINUES WITH UNABATED SUCCESS

At a Saving To You From 30% To 50% On Your New Furs

This is the most important sale of the season and it offers an opportunity to the careful buyer that will not be available when Fall is at hand, particularly because of the fact that the fur garment makers have been on strike since May and will undoubtedly cause a shortage of furs in the Fall.

The values here are genuine, the furs exactly as we represent them, garments, sets and pieces were made up long before the fur workers went out on strike—from a very fine collection of peltries, bought in New York and St. Louis auction sales at prices much below prevailing prices of today.

We are congratulating ourselves of having the biggest, brightest and best stock of made up Furs in New England today. Our collections mirror the newest creations for 1920-21. A deposit on any garment will guarantee safe storage with no charge, the purchase being reserved until desired.
